Pennsylvania: local approval

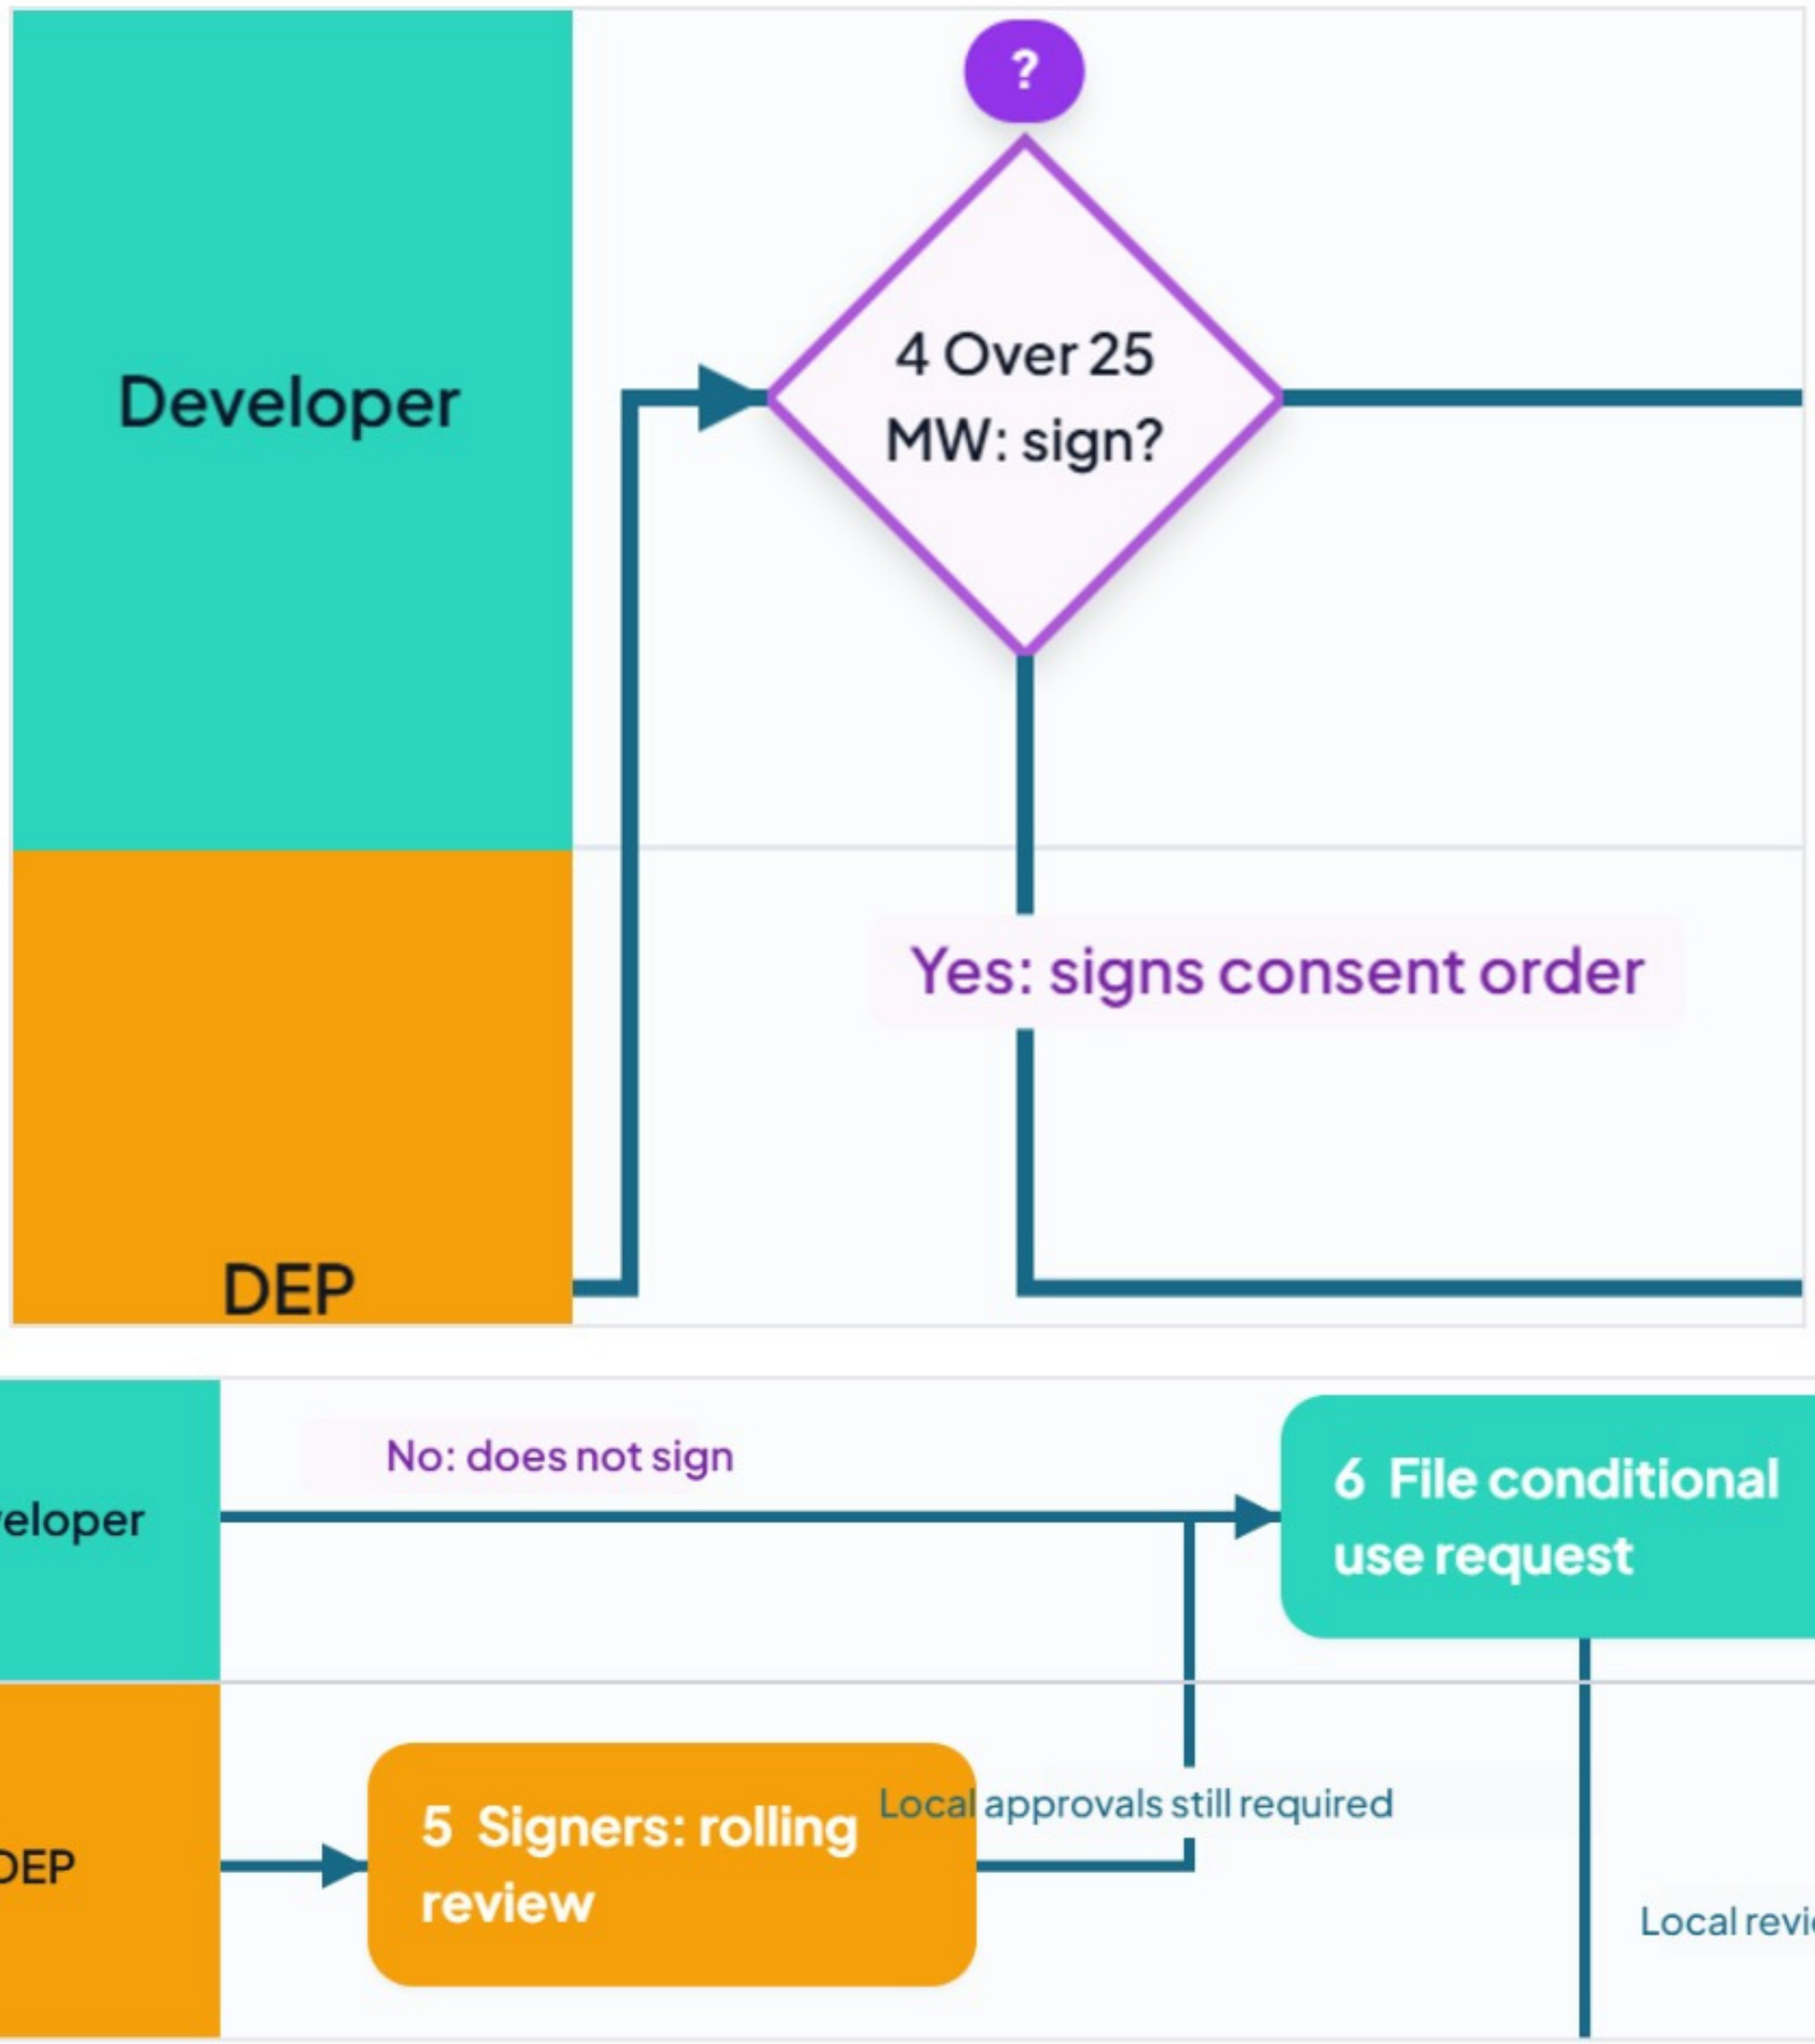

Hearing within 60 days; decision within 45 days after the last hearing, or the project is deemed approved. County planning review: 30 days.

Pennsylvania: the consent-order decision

Projects over 25 MW decide whether to sign a DEP consent order. Signers get rolling DEP review, but local approvals are still required.

> Developers take one path: sign the consent order (step 5) or don’t (step 11).

Pennsylvania: plan approval and DEP review

Plan decision: 90 days after the next regular meeting. Non-signers' DEP review begins only after local approvals are documented. Either way, permits follow local approvals.

> Developers take one path: sign the consent order (step 5) or don't (step 11).

Virginia: county process (1 of 2)

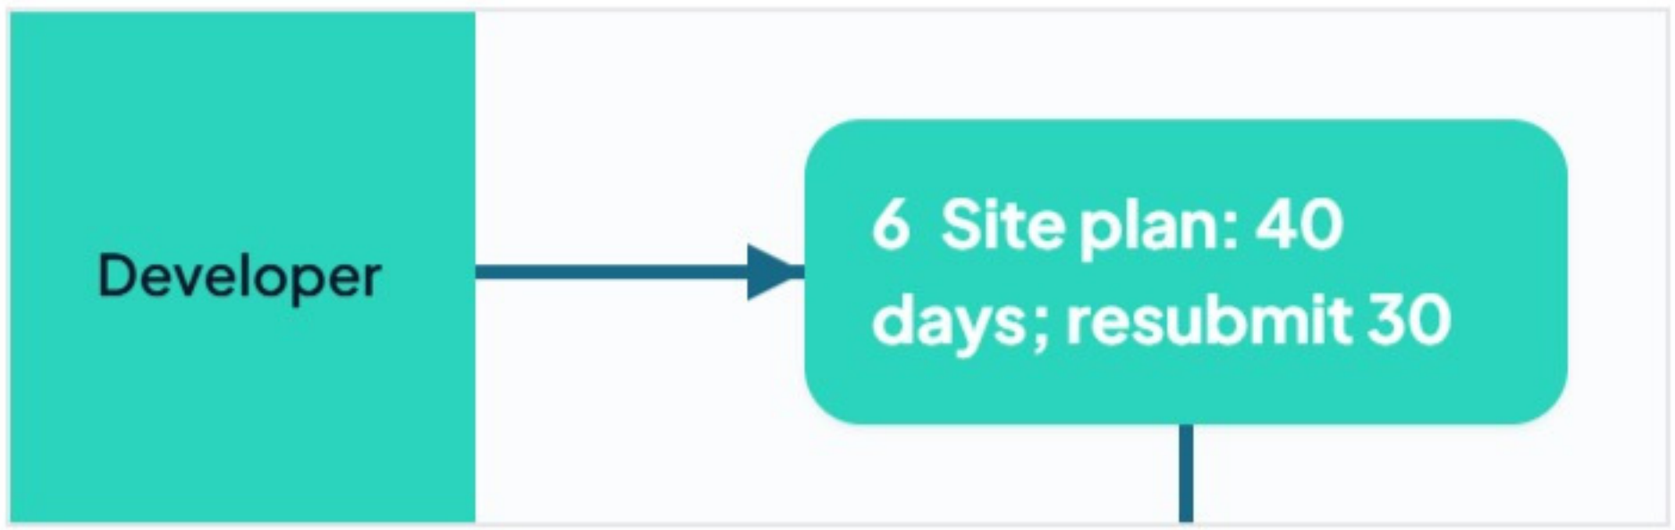

Zoning varies by locality. Projects of 100 MW or more need a site assessment, including sound at homes and schools within 500 feet. Planning commission: 100 days, then deemed favorable.

Virginia: county process (2 of 2)

Board of supervisors or city council: 12 months, with no deemed approval. Site plan: 40 days; a resubmission not acted on within 30 days is deemed approved.

Virginia: state steps

No expedited state review for projects of 25 MW or more, and DEQ review does not wait on local approval. Utility rate and transmission rules run in parallel.
